Participation & Co-production.

Participation means taking part and there are various levels of participation where you could participate in a variety of ways. An example is planning an activity where you might participate in the activity or potentially also take part in planning the activity.

Co-production is like participation but you are involved at the very start of the planning. It means everyone who might be involved would have a conversation to produce a solution and plan together.

What do we do?

We believe we should do “Nothing about You, Without You.” We support you to make sure that Worcestershire’s youth voice is heard and provides opportunities for young people to be actively involved in decision-making that affects them, their families and communities. We work with all of Worcestershire’s youth, offering support for young people and young adults to enable their voice to be heard.

We plan and host consultation events, working with partners and colleagues to hear the voices of children and young people across Worcestershire. We work together with various partner agencies and projects linked to the participation groups.

We run the children in care council called Who Cares We Care, the care leavers council called Action Speak and the Youth Panel which is a group of trained young people who interview staff across the organisation. Another group is the Worcestershire Youth Cabinet who campaign on issues that matter to young people, linking in with Youth Parliament and the British Youth Council. We also support focus groups run by public health, events, and commissioning opportunities. We also plan events, training, and workshops.

Who Cares We Care

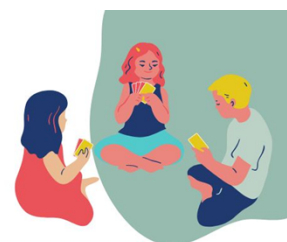

The Children in Care Council is a statutory service to gather the views of children in care. The service started in 2008. We follow the guidance from the National Children's Bureau for best practices with the resources available. Guide to Good Practice in Running of a Children in Care Council \(ncb.org.uk\)

How do we do it?

7 active members that meet monthly aged between 11-17. All members are care experienced and meet both online and in person at our base in St Johns. We keep agendas and minutes for all meetings. We keep reports of events to reflect on practice and feedback.

We meet monthly at our base to have fun, make friends, have food and use our experiences to help professionals shape our services.

We work closely to plan fun events for children in care and had over 100 people come to our annual fun day. Plus over 120 people at the fostering pool pizza party.
